An Innocent Abroad

How to Cross the Atlantic and Make 'Em Think You're Burton Holmes

Just Bring Plenty of Clothes for Eight Changes a Day, Even if You Have to Borrow 'Em.

Neal O'Hara is abroad. This is his first article for The Evening World written since he left America. He is going to see Europe through peculiarly American eyes, and readers who follow his Evening World articles know that he sees everything with a laugh. There will be a number of O'Hara articles from Europe. Keep in touch with them.
